

High-Fi Prototype

For this prototype, I added a checkout button for the user to move into the next stage of the process. I also added a footer that would link to Bun Bun's social media and email. This is a common thing that many websites do, and it can be easier for a user to connect with the company. The color scheme is meant to give off a young playful vibe because my intent is to make this site for a family business.